"Building Legacy on and off the Court: Rising Together"

At its heart, the artwork reflects the transformative power of connection and community.

Central Circles:
The teams Core Pillars:

- Pathways: The spears signify breaking traditional molds to create new pathways for mentorship and opportunity.
- Development: The domino effect and the symbolism of the kookaburras highlight the continuous growth and renewal that mentorship and support bring.
- Community: The artwork connects deeply with the collective spirit of empowerment, resilience, and unity.

Stars connecting each core pillar:

- The Four Spears: Positioned in one of the stars, two large and two small spears represent the process of mentorship. This symbolizes breaking old barriers to create pathways for fresh, innovative approaches to guidance and leadership.
- Domino in the Star: The domino nestled in the other star signifies the domino effect of mentorship—how one act of guidance and support can ripple outward, influencing countless others in positive and profound ways.

Two Kookaburras: In my Aboriginal culture, the kookaburra holds dual significance, representing both a passing and a birth. Here, the kookaburras embody birth—a symbol of new beginnings, fresh opportunities, and the dawn of transformative initiatives.

- Fire-Colored Dashes: Echoing the mythical phoenix, these vibrant dashes of red, orange, symbolise rebirth, resilience, and the enduring spirit of renewal.

Large Left Circle, Represents the teams Vision: Empowering Dreams, Fostering Growth, and Uniting the Community through Basketball.

Large Right Circle is the teams Mission: This piece aligns with the mission of fostering a positive and creative environment for athletes, staff, and the wider community. By celebrating mentorship, personal development, and cultural richness through basketball, it emphasises the importance of aligning with high-achieving, like-minded individuals who strive to grow both as professionals and as people.

Tiffany Hunter
STUDIO